Legendary Headmaster of School No. 5

Anna Vladimirovna Mardirosova was born in the city of Rostov-on-Don, graduated from the Physics and Mathematics Faculty of Rostov State University. After the Great Patriotic War, Anna Vladimirovna came to school as a mathematics teacher. And in 1953 she became the headmaster of the school and for 33 years (until 1986) headed School number 5. During these years, important events took place in the life of the school:

- in 1956 the school was named after the children's writer Arkady Petrovich Gaidar;
- in 1958 the school building was restored in Socialisticheskaya street, destroyed during the second occupation of Rostov-on-Don in 1942-1943.

But the main event that determined the fate of the school took place in 1962. School No. 5 became the first mathematical school in the city.

Due to Anna Vladimirovna's initiative, an agreement with the Rostov State University teachers was signed. And to this day they have been teaching certain mathematical disciplines at School No. 5.

Anna Vladimirovna managed to gather under her leadership a team of like-minded people, talented teachers. First of all, these are the teachers of mathematics: Golubova N. A., Rugareva A. Y., Dvornikov A. I., Pushhenko A. M.

Many graduates of the school became scientists, candidates and doctors of physical and mathematical sciences.

School No. 5 was the meaning of Anna Vladimirovna's life. In the mornings, Anna Vladimirovna met the students and teachers who came to school, and the door to the director's office was always open. Another story is evidence of recognition and admiration for the Director. In 1985, the 185th anniversary of the school was celebrated, the celebration took place in the Great Hall of the Philharmonic, the hall was "packed" with graduates of different years. When the presenters said that Anna Vladimirovna Mardirosova became the director in 1953,
